A tobacco-free campus emphasizes the health of all students, faculty and staff.

The university has already made a commitment to building a healthier campus community by constructing a new wellness center and offering many wellness classes. Going tobacco-free shows the sincerity of that commitment.

We can
AT UNK

UNK would be a regional leader and can match its peer institutions' tobacco-free policies. We can make a difference at UNK, radically changing our campus culture for the better. We can create a ripple effect throughout the state, pushing other institutions of higher education toward cleaner and healthier campus communities. All because we really can make a difference at UNK.
